Dear Hiring Committee:

Subject: Application for Project Coordinator – Research, Job Number 3711412

Your research teams need a coordinator who can keep investigators, partners, and funders working from one schedule and one budget, from the first planning meeting to the final report. Please consider this application for the term position of Project Coordinator – Research (Job Bank job number 3711412), posted on November 4, 2026. For more than three years, my work at The Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Denver Art Museum, the Smithsonian, and a Kingston non-profit has centred on exactly that kind of coordination.

Queen's places Research Impact first among the six goals of the Queen's Strategy, alongside Queen's in the Community, and the results are visible: in 2026, Queen's ranked fourth in the world and first in Canada in the Times Higher Education impact ratings, its sixth consecutive year in the global top ten. Research with that reach depends on projects that finish on time, report clearly to funders, and keep community partners informed. As a Queen's Master of Arts graduate and a current Master of Digital Product Management student at the Smith School of Business, I understand Queen's research culture first-hand, so your team would spend less time on orientation and more time on the research itself.

Your projects would benefit from delivery discipline proven on deadline-driven work. At The Met, I coordinated collections and interpretation planning for the multimillion-dollar reinstallation of the Michael C. Rockefeller Wing, routing research content through multi-stage reviews with curatorial, conservation, education, and design specialists; the wing reopened to the public on schedule in May 2025. At the Denver Art Museum, I tracked deliverables and expenses across concurrent exhibitions with fixed opening dates, keeping results on schedule and within budget.

You would also gain a coordinator who turns data into decisions. As Project Manager and Program Lead at Emole Futures Initiative in Kingston, I manage four concurrent workstreams for the Black Youth in Business program, monitor spending against a baselined budget, and escalate scope changes while they are still small enough to absorb. I also designed and analysed a 27-question community intake survey and converted the results into dashboards and summaries that leaders use to plan the next delivery cycle, the same kind of clear, evidence-based reporting that research funders and partners expect.

I would welcome the chance to discuss how this experience can help your research team meet its milestones and reporting commitments. Since I live in Kingston, a meeting on campus at a time that suits you is easy to arrange; please call 343-989-2373 or email teminicrownpro@gmail.com. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Adekunle (Ade) Adeniji

PROFILE AND OBJECTIVE

Objective: Project Coordinator – Research, Queen's University (Job Bank job number 3711412)

Research-trained project coordinator with more than three years of experience delivering multidisciplinary research, interpretation, and community projects for The Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Denver Art Museum, the Smithsonian, and a Kingston non-profit. Keeps specialists, partners, and leaders working from one schedule and one budget, and turns project data into clear reports for decision-makers. Combines a Queen's Master of Arts with graduate training in project management, digital product management, and professional communication.

CORE COMPETENCIES

- Research coordination: planned and tracked research and interpretation deliverables across curatorial, conservation, education, and design teams
- Schedule and milestone control: delivered work against fixed, publicly announced dates, including the on-schedule May 2025 reopening of The Met's Rockefeller Wing
- Budget monitoring and reporting: built and monitored baselined budgets and reported variance and outcomes through dashboards and executive summaries
- Stakeholder and partner engagement: aligned schools, mentors, community advisors, and institutional partners around shared scope and timelines
- Survey design and evaluation: designed and analysed a 27-question community intake survey to measure outcomes against objectives
- Research writing and presentation: published three essays on The Met's Heilbrunn Timeline of Art History and presented to staff and stakeholders

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Project Manager and Program Lead — 2025 – Present
Emole Futures Initiative Inc., Kingston, Ontario

- Defined scope, objectives, and deliverables for the Black Youth in Business program with the executive team, giving schools, mentors, and community partners one shared plan to work from.
- Built integrated plans, schedules, and milestone maps across four concurrent workstreams, so every workshop, mentoring session, and public event had a clear owner and date.
- Recruited, scheduled, and supervised program assistants and volunteer mentors, routing each activity to the right facilitator so work reached the correct owner the first time.
- Monitored facilitator, materials, and event spending against a baselined budget, escalating scope changes to leadership while they were still small enough to absorb.
- Designed and analysed a 27-question community intake survey, measuring outcomes against objectives and producing findings that shaped the next delivery cycle.
- Presented dashboards and outcome summaries to executives and external stakeholders, turning delivery and budget data into decision-ready reports.

Project Coordinator, Arts of Africa (Curatorial Residency) January 2025 – July 2025
The Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, NY | Samuel and Gabrielle Lurie Fund Residency

- Coordinated collections and interpretation planning for the multimillion-dollar reinstallation of the Michael C. Rockefeller Wing, contributing to its on-schedule public reopening in May 2025.
- Aligned curatorial, conservation, registration, education, and design teams on interpretation deliverables, securing specialist approvals on content, timing, and display before deadlines.
- Tracked versions, milestones, and deadlines through multi-stage review cycles, keeping print and digital content synchronized with the installation schedule.
- Documented decisions from cross-team planning meetings and escalated schedule risks early, giving senior staff time to resolve issues before they threatened the opening date.
- Researched and wrote gallery interpretation and three published Heilbrunn Timeline of Art History essays, making complex material accessible to a broad public audience.

Exhibition Project Coordinator and Curatorial Fellow January 2022 – May 2023
Denver Art Museum, Denver, CO

- Coordinated deliverables and budgets across concurrent exhibitions with fixed opening dates, tracking progress and expenses to keep results on schedule and within budget.
- Managed gallery labels, catalogue copy, and digital interpretive content from drafting through review and approval to final printed and published output.
- Communicated scope and schedule changes to curatorial, education, design, and registration partners, keeping every team aligned as plans shifted.
- Collaborated with community advisors on exhibitions and public programs, building their feedback into scope and content decisions so the work reflected the communities it served.
- Handled and installed sculpture, textiles, and works on paper to professional museum standards, protecting object safety in partnership with registration and conservation.

Project and Curatorial Intern July 2021 – November 2021
Smithsonian National Museum of African Art, Washington, DC

- Supported exhibition planning and public engagement across curatorial, conservation, and registration teams, applying federal-standard intake, documentation, and object-handling protocols to keep collection records complete and accurate.
